

Employment news

Job news

{jcomments off}Traditional ways to look for new employment opportunities include 'scanning' the newspapers and trade publications, for example, magazines, news letters, digests, email newsletters, seminar listings, visiting employment exchanges, registering at employment agencies, visiting job centers, asking your friends, neighbours, the store you would like to work and so forth.

Subscribe yourself to (free) mailings of job listings made by agencies or other employment and recruitment specialists. Again, the internet provides a plethora of free e-zines relating to employment opportunities worldwide.

The following sites and companies provide free e-zines on hundreds of subjects including employment. Make sure you select only what you are really looking for if you do not want your e-mailbox filled everyday with a lot of unrelated information.

Email newsletters

-

GetAJob

-

Reardon & Associates

-

RSA IT Jobs

-

Electronic Recruiting News

-

Silicon Alley

-

Telecommuting

E-zines and other publications

-

Computists Weekly

-

Univ. of Virginia

-

Anancy Web

-

New Scientist

-

Academia

-

Chronicle of Higher Education

-

Engineering and Computer Science

